The Maltings.

1—The Maltings

Cramond Heritage Trust Education and Information Centre.

2—The Roman Bathhouse Site

Dig in 1975 – discovered when work was being undertaken to make the Public Car Park and contains one of the highest sections of Roman Wall remains in Scotland.

3—Mesolithic Site

Dig in 1993. When deposits of lithic material were found (flint, chert, quartz and agate). Following analysis it was determined that these were from 8,500 BC.

4—Roman Fort site

Dig in 1954—56. Revealed the existence of the Fort. Other Digs since then have further uncovered more locations and the existence of the Roman Road.

Note— The Maltings will hold a presentation of the new App on Historic Cramond. This has been developed by the Smart History team at St Andrew's University.
